

Learning through Diversity at International School Hilversum in 2014:

cross-cultural learning and teaching in a big open space and easy access to new media.

To support the mission of the International School Hilversum 'Learning through Diversity' even more, the unique historic building of the International School Hilversum will be renewed. Advances in ICT and an education where the boundaries between subjects inevitably fade, leave an increasing need for cross-curricular teaching and learning. By definition this requires cooperation and this in turn means open spaces capable of holding more than 30 students and access to new media.

In 2014 the International School Hilversum will be provided with a brand new multifunctional auditorium, an advanced library and high tech science rooms. The auditorium will be able to host the maximum of 120 students and its purpose will be primarily student focused.

The refurbishment starts spring/summer 2012 and takes place in four phases. Every stage and its implications for students, teachers and parents will be announced and described in more detail on the website: www.ishilversum.nl
